

BELL TENT ON THE UPPER HILLSIDE

St Enodoc

The first tent of the three on the upper hillside, named after the church in the dunes at Rock — high, quiet, and up a steep path.

Sleeps up to 4 · A double bed and two single beds · Dogs welcome

St Enodoc is named after the church in the dunes at Rock — the one that spent centuries half-buried in sand. Our St Enodoc is the first of the three tents on the upper hillside: the first deck you reach as the path climbs, with Sea Champion just above it and St Petroc higher still. Its own private deck with a chiminea, matting underfoot, and a double bed and two singles all made up with bedding and towels before you arrive.

The path up is steep, and it's only fair to say so before you book rather than after. It's a climb on grass from the main track, uneven in places, and you'll be doing it with the bags. What you get at the top is the reason people keep choosing these three: height, distance from everything, and a valley laid out below the deck. It is a good trade for most guests — but not the right one if anyone in the party has limited mobility, or if you're travelling with a lot of luggage.

Being the first tent up has its own advantage. You are properly up in the quiet, without the extra stretches of climb that Sea Champion and St Petroc ask for. The shower block and toilets are in the glamping car park, open 24 hours and less than five minutes' walk away, and the communal glamping cook deck is about the same again, with the washing-up and a fridge and freezer. A torch still makes the evenings easier. The bell tents run from April to September.

Good to know before you book

- The path up to St Enodoc is steep. It's a climb on grass from the main track, uneven underfoot, and you'll carry your bags up it. The view is what people come for; go in knowing the hill is part of the deal.
- That makes this a poor choice for anyone with limited mobility, or for a party bringing a lot of luggage. Hartland and Kernow are a gentle rise; Fistril and Polzeath in the camping field are level ground.
- Showers and toilets are in the shared block in the glamping car park, less than five minutes' walk from the tent. The block is open 24 hours; it may be worth packing a torch for after dark.
- There's no cooking inside the tent, but you do have a gas cooker on the decking right outside it. The communal glamping cook deck is about five minutes' walk for the washing-up and the fridge and freezer, and Bude is about two miles away.
- Bedding and towels are provided and the beds are made up. Bring your own food.
- Four in a bell tent is still plenty spacious: one round canvas room with a double and two singles in it.
- The bell tents run from April to September. Outside those months the lodges, the school bus and the Airstream stay open, and camping pitches run in their own seasons.
- Dogs are welcome, though the climb is worth thinking about for an older dog. Please keep them on a lead no longer than two metres, exercise them in the area provided, and don't leave them unattended. We can't accept Rottweilers, Dobermans, Bull Mastiffs, Pit Bull Terriers or their crosses.
- Arrive from 3pm, leave by 10am.
